PRACTISING MEDICINE IN NOVA SCOTIA:

A PHYSICIAN CHECKLIST

Purpose of the Checklist

A physician practising medicine in Nova Scotia must ensure that they fulfill all mandatory medical regulatory requirements. This document provides a checklist along with a concise summary of such requirements.

About the College

Through the Nova Scotia Medical Act, the provincial government designated the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Nova Scotia (the College) as the self-regulating body for physicians in Nova Scotia.

The College serves the public by regulating the province's medical profession in accordance with the Nova Scotia Medical Act and its regulations.

Medical Licence to Practise

Physicians practising medicine in Nova Scotia must apply for a licence to practise medicine from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Nova Scotia. There are several types of licences issued by the College. To apply for a licence, please review the information for applicants for medical licence registration on the College website.

Physicians must apply to the College annually to renew their licence to practise. You can renew and pay for your medical licence online during the month of November.

Please review information at:

Continuing Professional Development (CPD)

The College recognizes that continuing professional development (CPD) plays a key role in ongoing practice improvement for physicians.

The Nova Scotia Medical Act mandates that all licensed physicians participate in a program of continuing professional development through the College of Family Physicians of Canada's (CFPC) MAINPRO Program or the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada's (RSPSC) Maintenance of Competence (MOC) Program.

The College monitors mandatory physician enrollment and compliance in the MAINPRO and MOC CPD programs.

Medical Council of Canada (MCC)

The MCC grants a qualification in medicine known as the Licentiate of the Medical Council of Canada (LMCC). To obtain a full and unrestricted licence to practice medicine in Nova Scotia, you must be a licentiate of MCC.

The LMCC is not a licence to practise medicine, the authority to issue such is reserved to the medical regulatory authorities. The LMCC is a part of the Canadian Standard, the set of requirements for awarding a full licence. Upon receiving their LMCC, candidates are also enrolled in the Canadian Medical Register.

Prescribing Controlled Substances

Approved prescription pads are necessary for all physicians when prescribing controlled substances. In order to obtain these pads a physician must register with the Nova Scotia Prescription Monitoring Program (NSPMP). The Prescription Monitoring Act and Regulations established the NSPMP to promote the appropriate use of monitored drugs in Nova Scotia and to reduce the abuse or misuse of monitored drugs in the province.

Statutory Reporting Requirements

The practice of medicine is governed by the Medical Act and its regulations. Physicians must also be aware of provincial statutes which affect the practice of medicine. Some of these statutes contain mandatory reporting requirements or protection from action based on your reporting.

Physicians are aware of the duty of confidentiality to patients. However, many are uncertain as to when the duty of confidentiality can be overridden by a statutory duty to report information in the public interest. Some laws require physicians to report medical information to public officials that would otherwise be considered confidential. For example, there are a number of notifiable diseases and conditions that physicians are required to report.

Canadian Medical Association Code of Ethics

This Code has been prepared by the Canadian Medical Association as an ethical guide for Canadian physicians, including residents, and medical students. Its focus is the core activities of medicine and is based on the fundamental principles and values of medical ethics, especially compassion, beneficence, non-maleficence, respect for persons, justice and accountability. The Canadian Medical Association Code of Ethics provides a common ethical framework for Canadian physicians.
