If you are a certified specialist, a copy of your certification with the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada (RCPSC) is required for your application. This can be provided in one of the following ways:

1. If you have recently completed postgraduate training and passed the certification examination of the RCPSC but have not yet received formal confirmation of your certification, the RCPSC provides the College with a list of newly certified physicians. This direct communication to the College will be acceptable for your application, but it remains your responsibility to check with the RCPSC to ensure that confirmation of your certification has been sent to this College.
2. The College will also accept certification directly from the issuing institution (for the RCPSC, please request a Lifetime Certification document).
